

My career has largely unfolded within multinational companies operating in the electric energy sector, where my responsibilities focused on establishing partnerships, strategic alliances, and networking with public utilities and major corporations.

Retirement led me to volunteer work in several community organizations, including serving as a board member of a leisure organization in Laval.

I was later drawn to the mission of FADOQ, which led me to assume the presidency of the board of directors for the Laval region in 2024.

I wish to contribute the qualities that best define me—namely strategic vision, commitment, and leadership.
