

A federal civil servant for over 36 years, Jocelyne Wiseman began her career in a financial support position and steadily advanced to the role of Chief of Staff for the Deputy Minister. She had the opportunity to work in administrative management, human resources, and IT for customer service. During these years, she also worked on special projects, including the Olympic Games.

She was involved in the creation of an employment recruitment office, an employment development office providing regions with the opportunity to undertake federally funded projects, and a bureau for the backlog of refugee claimants.

Additionally, throughout her career, she volunteered with an international employment security association, Leucan, and in a shelter helping women in situations of domestic violence.

Since her retirement, she has been a member of the Federal Retirees' Association board for over 13 years (and served as vice-president for 5 years), a member of the Tel écoute/Tel Aîné board for 7 years, a member of the FADOQ – Région île de Montréal board for 14 years (president for 5 years), and a member of the FADOQ provincial board for 5 years.
